

CONTRIBUTORS

Nate Beaty has been scribbling on whatever scrap of paper that crossed his path since gradeschool. The last seven years have been spent attempting to hone the tricky craft of comics. With several self-publications and anthology work under his belt, Nate fears this comic obsession will be a lifelong pursuit, and has begun preparing for a monk-like future eating rice and sipping tea from ink-stained cups.

Edgar Dacosta was born in Spain in 1986. He says, "I'm not studying photography, and I'm not a professional photographer, but I like so much this little world full of fantasy, sensations and inexplicable emotions."

Brenda Edin is a small business owner and freelance writer in Portland, OR. A lover of both work and play, she encourages others to find a career for which they have not only the skills, but the interest and passion.

Ray Fenwick is an illustrator, artist, letterer and letterpress printer living in Halifax, Nova Scotia. He was the author of the award-winning comic Hall of Best Knowledge, now finished its run. He makes all kinds of things, but to be honest, most of them include lettering in some way.

Matt Hinrichs is a freelance graphic designer and illustrator from Phoenix, Arizona. His wanky noodlings can be sampled at scrubbles.net.

Lara Jade is a seventeen-year-old photographer from central England. She says, "I'm mostly self-taught, but last year I enrolled in a photography course at college. I currently use a Canon 350d with 18-55mm lens, 50mm f/1.8, and a 60mm macro."

Laura Kicey is a graphic designer and photographer from Central Pennsylvania. She can usually be found cloistered in an attic in Ambler, PA with her Mac or skulking around alleys with her camera. Her photographs have been published in a number of books and magazines and shown in local and online galleries alike.

Kevin Moffett was born and raised in Daytona Beach, Florida. Until recently, he edited and wrote for Funworld. His stories have appeared in McSweeney's, Tin House, StoryQuarterly, the Chicago Tribune, and elsewhere. His first collection of stories, Permanent Visitors, won the Iowa Short Fiction Award.

Aaron Renier currently lives in Brooklyn Ny with his dog Beluga. He won an Eisner award for his first book Spiral-Bound out with Top Shelf Productions, and is currently working on a book title The Unsinkable Walker Bean for Scholastic Books. He is also working on his beard which is coming in nicely.

PDX Super Crafty is a collective of four women who each run a business selling handmade items. They joined forces to support each other, promote their businesses as one, and to help people discover the importance of crafting and buying handmade items. Their first book, Super Crafty: Over 75 Amazing How-To Projects was released last fall.

Mark Pesce is the founder of FutureSt, a Sydney Media and Technology Consultancy. Pesce is best known as the co-inventor of VRML. Author of five books and numerous articles, Pesce is the former founding chair of both the New Media program at USC's School of Cinema-Television, and the Emerging Media program at the Australian FilmTelevision and Radio School.

Working the web since 1995, Derek Powazek is the creator of many award-winning websites, a couple of which still exist. Derek is the cofounder of JPG Magazine and the CCO of 8020 Publishing. Derek lives in San Francisco with his wife, two nutty Chihuahuas, a grumpy cat, and a house full of plants named Fred.

OFFICE owners Tony Secolo and Kelly Collier are an award-winning husband and wife graphic design and marketing team. Together and separately, they have been involved in the graphic design profession for over ten years. Secolo's graphic design work has been featured in HOW, Print, the San Francisco Center for the Book, and several other publications. Collier, in addition to owning OFFICE with Secolo, is also the Marketing Director for design firm, Twenty Four Seven in Portland, OR and a board member for the Portland Institute of Contemporary Arts. Prior to OFFICE, Collier worked in business development and client relations for NBBJ and also for ZIBA. She has served on a number of arts and design boards throughout her career, including the American Institute for Graphic Arts (Seattle Chapter). She is also certified in Design Firm Leadership and Management and has written many articles on public service, marketing, leadership, and design.
